

NATIONAL REPOSITORY
of ONLINE COURSES

NROC Overview

The National Repository of Online Courses (NROC) is a growing library of high-quality online course content for students and faculty in higher education, high school and Advanced Placement®. This project, supported by The William and Flora Hewlett Foundation, facilitates collaboration among a community of content developers to reach students and teachers worldwide.

Course content in the NROC library is contributed by developers from leading online-learning programs across the country. All course content is assessed by the NROC development team to ensure it meets high standards of scholarship, instructional value, and presentational impact. NROC contributes editorial, design and technology resources to improve course quality and to provide ongoing maintenance. NROC course content is designed to cover the breadth and depth of topics based on generally-accepted national curricula and can also be customized by faculty within a course management system.

WHAT DOES NROC OFFER?

- ◆ A source for instructionally-rich, multi-modal online course content
- ◆ A focus on collaboration that improves quality and eliminates redundancies in course development efforts
- ◆ The NROC Network, an online community focusing on the continuous improvement of online courses and instruction

Library Benefits

- ◆ Central resource for media-rich, permissions-cleared content readily customizable by faculty
- ◆ Multimedia content beyond the development capabilities of most institutions
- ◆ Course content that is hosted by the institution in the course management system of choice
- ◆ Institutions have the right to repurpose and combine library content with existing courses
- ◆ Broad rights of use for distance, hybrid or campus applications
- ◆ Increasing number of course topics offered at no additional cost
- ◆ Support, expertise and resources through the NROC Network online community
